

jAlbum now available in retail

The jAlbum software has historically been sold online as digital download. Since a few years back the German publisher and distributor Bhv has been selling jAlbum in a physical box on the German and Austrian market.

Today jAlbum announces that the software, with a special Pro license including storage, is now available and ready to be distributed to the Swedish retail market. The software is sold as a folder with a product key and to be placed on store shelves next to other similar software.

"Being a Swedish company it is only natural for us to offer our own software in retail stores here in Sweden – says David Ekholm, Founder and CEO of jAlbum. After more than 12 years of continual development jAlbum is definitely a high end product well suited for retail in the photography and home electronic segment."
